

GERBER SOFTWARE ENGINEERING & CONSULTING

Project References Overview of Services

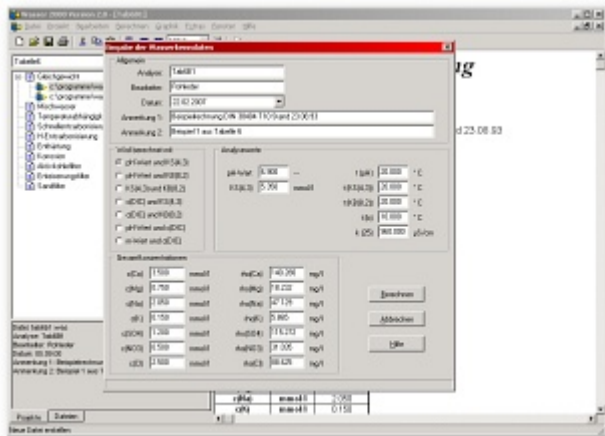

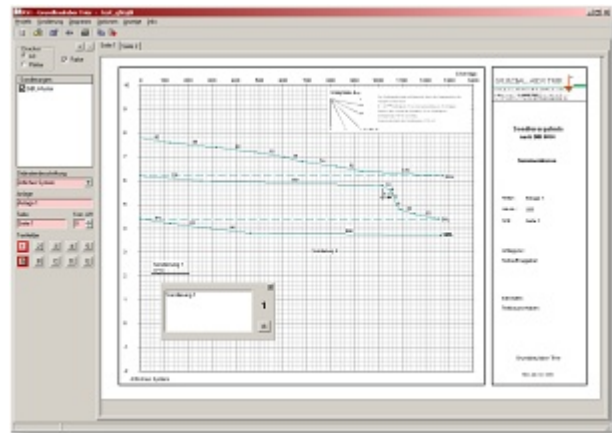

September 2007

Software-centric projects

Below you will find a partial list of past and current projects. Application screenshots are provided where confidentiality agreements permit this.

Soil consistency diagramming

Development of a software application to graphically represent the results of soil consistency probing for a civil engineering company

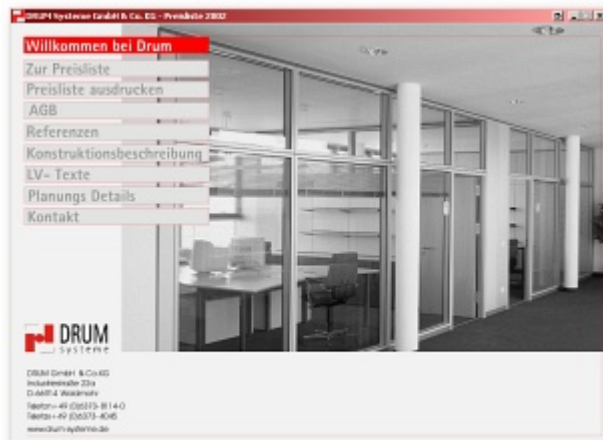

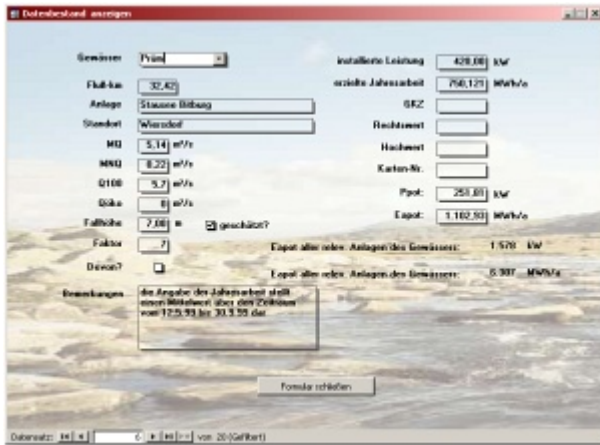

Water treatment systems dimensioning

Development and marketing of the leading application for dimensioning large-scale water treatment systems in the German-speaking market

Product presentation CD

Development of a product presentation CD for a manufacturer of office wall and shelf systems

Hydro power potential assessment survey

The survey was conducted to provide a basis for the hydro power and watercourse registry of a German district government agency (see below)

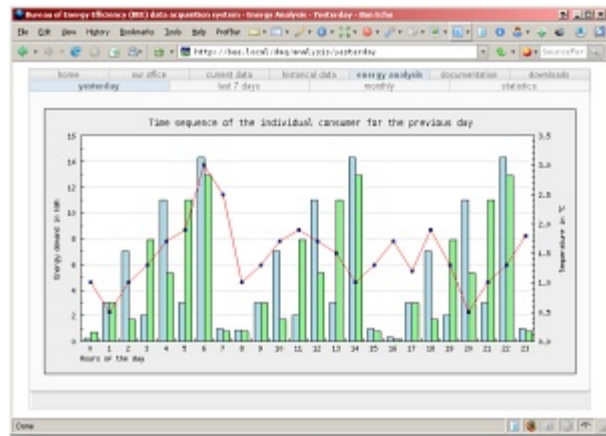

Hydro power and watercourse registry

Development of the hydro power and watercourse registry of a German district government agency. Database development and graphical user interface (Microsoft Access). Integration with the agency's Geographical Information System (GIS)

Data acquisition and analysis system

Development and implementation of a web-based data acquisition system for a federal government agency in India. The system acquires and analyzes temperature, relative humidity, carbon dioxide concentration and energy consumption of electrical equipment, air conditioners and lighting.

Project planning, software development, device assembly and setup, on-the-job training for local developers and support staff was provided

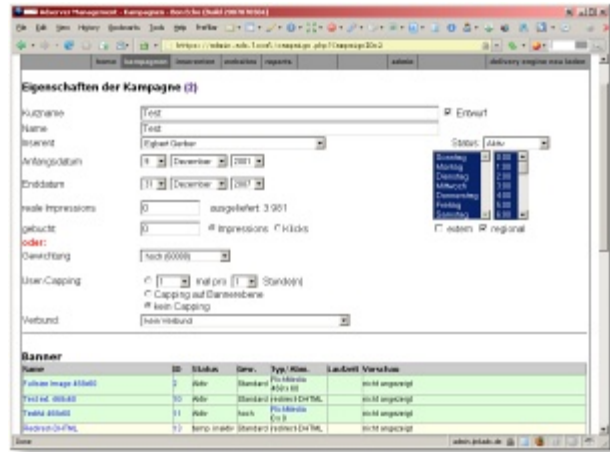

High performance media distribution system

Development of a web-based, high availability, distributed media storage and distribution system for an online and print media publishing company

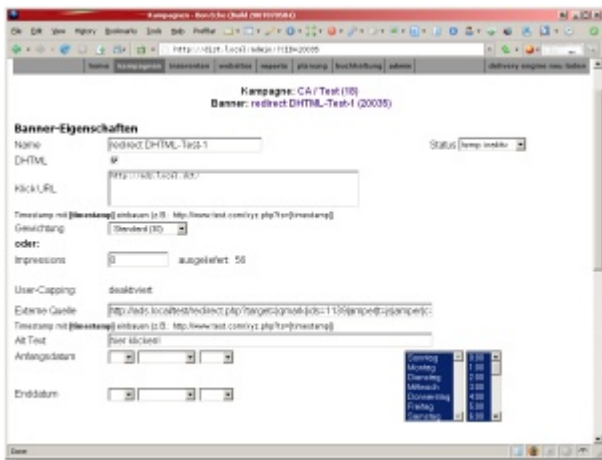

Ad serving and reporting system

Development of a web-based, high performance ad serving, reporting and accounting system for an online marketing company

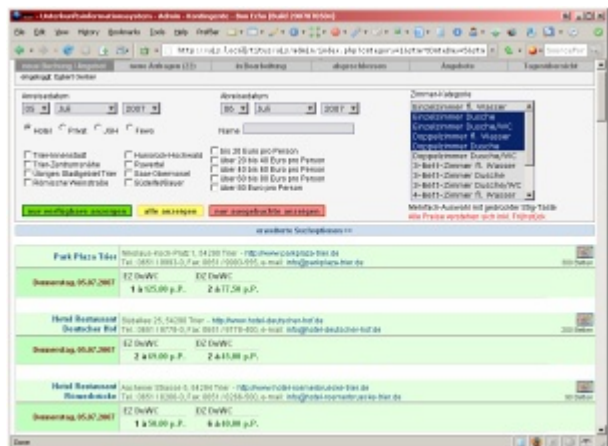

Media storage and distribution system

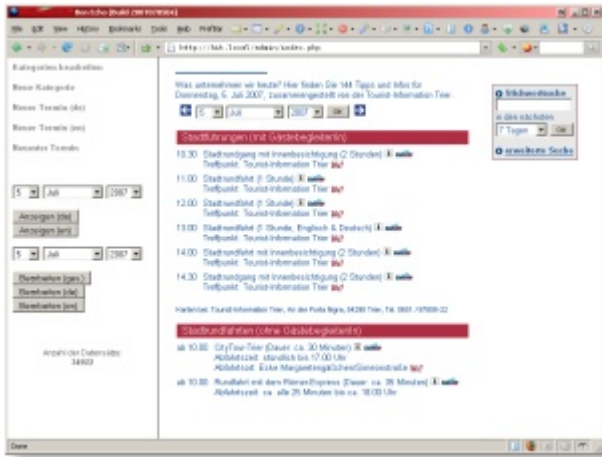

Development of a web-based, large-scale media storage, distribution and reporting system for an online marketing company

Hotel reservation system

Development of a web-based hotel reservation system for a German tourist office

Event calendar system

Development of a web-based event calendar system for a German tourist office

- Development of a public transport information system for a German city
- Several websites and other web applications for various companies and organizations
- Web services integration and custom programming for a travel agency and tour operator

Consulting, Coaching, Project Management and Training

Below you will find a brief list of services we provide for a wide range of mostly tech-oriented industries.

- Requirements engineering and software evaluation
- On-the-job training for tech support staff and software developers
- Executive-level employee coaching
- Job interviews and recruiting tests
- Setup of software development and support departments
- Workflow analysis and implementation of workflow management systems
- Implementation of quality management systems
- Creation and implementation of corporate coding and security standards
- Third-level tech support for software developers and support staff (current projects only)
- Technology consulting, product development and project management services for the sustainable energy sector
- Technology and business consulting services for tech start-up companies